Pawtucket man is sentenced to 70 months for trafficking in crack cocaine and heroin

A federal judge today sentenced Jorge Cintron, of Pawtucket, to 70 months in federal prison for trafficking in crack cocaine and heroin. On four occasions last fall, Cintron and a codefendant, Hector Martinez-Torres, sold crack outside Pawtucket apartments in transactions that were monitored by Drug Enforcement Administration agents. On one of those occasions, the defendants also sold heroin.

United States Attorney Robert Clark Corrente announced the sentence, which Chief U.S. District Court Judge Ernest C. Torres imposed today in U.S. District Court, Providence. In May, Cintron, 27, whose last known address is 85 Montgomery Street, pleaded guilty to conspiracy, four counts of distributing crack cocaine, and one count of distributing heroin.

At the plea hearing in May, Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard W. Rose said that the government had evidence proving that, on October 21, a man made arrangements with Martinez-Torres to buy an ounce of crack for $1,000. When contacted at his apartment at 101 Barton Street, Martinez told the buyer that he would send his "cousin" out to make the transaction. Cintron then appeared outside the building and gave the buyer 27.9 grams of crack cocaine in exchange for $1,000. Drug Enforcement Administration agents monitored the transaction.

In November, Martinez-Torres and Cintron made three additional sales of crack cocaine to the same buyer in the same manner, but from an apartment located at 84 Montgomery Street, each time selling approximately one ounce of crack for $1,000. On the last occasion, on November 21, the two also sold the buyer 13 grams of heroin for $860. DEA agents monitored all of the transactions. Martinez-Torres and Cintron sold a total of 84.4 grams of crack cocaine and 12.2 grams of heroin in the four monitored transactions.

Martinez-Torres, of 85 Montgomery Street, whose age is not reflected in court records, has pleaded guilty to the same charges as Cintron. He is detained, awaiting sentencing, which is scheduled for September 27.

The Drug Enforcement Administration, Central Falls Police, and Pawtucket Police investigated the case. Assistant U.S. Attorney Rose prosecuted it.
